

ABOUT

"Her voice is tremendous, and the continued suspense of her stage presence is breathtaking", "a marvelous mezzo-soprano with organ-like depths" or "a vocal and acting synthesis of arts" are excerpts of reviews about the Austrian mezzo-soprano Maria Weiss. With a repertory focusing on early and contemporary music, she is dedicated in particular to premiering (forgotten) early music and contemporary compositions.

STUDIES

Maria studied voice at the national conservatory "Luigi Cherubini" in Florence and concluded her studies at the University of Music and Performing Arts Graz under the guidance of KS Sängerin Joanna Borowska. Acting studies at the "Lee Strasberg Theatre & Film Institute" in New York (US). Master Classes with Angelika Kirchschlager, Teresa Berganza und Jorge Sirena followed. Since then, Maria Weiss has worked and studied with the mezzo-soprano Glenys Linos, who was trained by Elvira de Hildago, teacher of Maria Callas.

REPERTOIRE

With an emphasis on Baroque repertoire, she has sung, amongst others, the roles of Bradamante or Gismonda (Händel), Megalce (Vivaldi), Lisinga (Gluck), contemporary music as the opera by W. Rihms "Jakob Lenz" (Voice) or Baiana in the European premiere of the Brazilian opera "Pedro Malazarte" of Mozart C. Guarnieri. Examples of premieres of rediscovered works in the Baroque repertoire are Palante in the Austrian premiere of "La Guerra de los Gigantes", Júpiter in "El imposible mayor en amor le vence Amor" (S. Durón) or Aurora in the European premiere of "L'Oracolo del Fato" (F. Gasparini).

Her opera spectrum includes not only the most important Mozart pieces, and extends from the rarely performed Renaissance and Baroque repertoire until Jacques Offenbach's operettas. She has worked with stage directors such as Frank Castorf, Philippe Arlaud, Seollyeon Konwitschny, John Lloyd Davies or the Baroque-Gesture- Specialist Sigrid T'Hooft or Kobie van Rensburg.

In 2019 Maria Weiss will give her debut at the Händel Festival in Halle as Irene in "Atalanta" (G.F. Händel).

LIED

With regard to her lied repertoire, Maria Weiss, under the guidance of Teresa Berganza and Isabel Aragón, has specialized on Spanish and Latin American repertoire (especially songs of De Falla, Granados, Guridi, Montsalvatge, Rodrigo, Leon und Villa-Lobos).

ACTING

Her stage presence has been described, amongst others, as that of a "gifted singer-actress" ('Kritisches Journal für Alte Musik'). Maria can frequently be seen as film actress in short films and feature films.

CD-REGISTRATIONS

The award-winning CD, the first recording of the Baroque opera "La Guerra de los Gigantes" by S. Durón (Label Panclassics) with ensemble "A Corte Musical", has received excellent reviews.

Her Solo-Debut Album „favola in musica. early new music“ was awarded amongst others with the Ö1 Pasticcio Prize and received enthusiastic reviews. Her album includes 3 world premiere recordings of early music and 2 world premiere recordings of contemporary music composed by Wolfgang Mitterer. Ö1 declared “Maria Weiss’ album one of the most beautiful new releases of early music this year.” The album tracks by Mitterer became part of film music of “Untitled” (Michael Glawogger, Monika Willi), an internationally awarded documentary. The film music was awarded “Austrian Film prize 2018” for best music.

2020 she gave her debut at Händel Festspiele Halle as Irene in Händel’s “Atalanta” under the direction of Michi Gaigg and L’Orfeo Baroque Orchestra.

Her next Solo-Album will be recorded in January 2020 with Luca Pianca, theorbo, Monika Thoth, violin and Wolfgang Mitterer as composer with early and contemporary music.
